SEASON IS OPEN ON LONG ISLAND

Hunters Are Now Ready for Campaign Against Willy Reynard.

HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND, March 17.—Fox-hunting began on Long Island to-day, and the hearts of the farmers of Nassau county have been made glad, as ever since the Meadow Brook Club stopped hunting last fall. Reynard has been making serious inroads into the farmers' henneries.

Owing to their having been left undisturbed for some time the foxes have grown brazen, and several times farmers have shot at them when they were leaving farmyards with fat hens in their mouths.

The Meadow Brook Club, with Malcolm Stevenson, the new master of the club, will do away with this nuisance. Mr. Stevenson recently came over from England and brought a number of new hounds, which will be run with the Meadow Brook pack and which have never been on the trail of anything but foxes.

A small party left the home of R. N. Ellis this afternoon for a preliminary hunt after a hunt of an hour managed to jump a red vixen, but the hunt party was disbanded.

Hunts will be held every day, Monday and Wednesday excepted. The fox-hounds will meet to-morrow at the Meadow Brook Club, March 20, New Cassell, March 23, Jericho, March 25, Bulls Head, March 27, Locust Valley.

Jeffries in the world have no terrors for me. And all this time, mind you, if it comes to really tough work, there is no telling what I can do. Jeffries is a strong man, but I think I would throw me around in the clinches, but after it was over they said Johnson was the stronger man.

When asked if there was any truth in the story that he would insist on a colored referee, Johnson made absolute for me. And all this time, mind you, if it comes to really tough work, there is no telling what I can do.
